

Are you looking for a break from modern life? Well come to Crythin Gifford where the scenery is amazing and home to a haunted mansion known as Eel Marsh House. Here there have been sightings of an evil spirit who roams, known to the villagers as the Woman in Black. She took on the appearance of a very skinny woman in funeral clothing. If anyone witnessed her she would drive them to madness until they committed suicide. Two suicides were reported: one girl burned herself alive and three girls jumped from their windows to their death. The Woman in Black has attracted many to the village. This is good for any ghost hunters as it is a village with a ghostly aura. The house is still available to see if you pass the marsh which the tide will cover if you stay for too long. Civilians are friendly people and basically all know each other. Tourists and ghost hunters alike look at Crythin Gifford in two ways: one where it's beautiful scenery and the others the home of an evil spirit but it's optional.

So, don't be scared to come down and have a look. It is located in the upper parts of the UK
